The Prohibition Campaign The campaign for and against the prohibitory amendment to the Constitution of West Virginia, has for some time been raging with more or less violence. It is dismaying to think what the atmospheric condition may be five or six months hence, when election day will be fast approaching.

The general proposition involves ques-tions of morals and of public policy questions which men of this State ought to be able to discuss dispassionately, without personal rancor. Unless there shall be a change for the better, this is not the way in which the campaign is to abstainer from all intoxicants-but this will not save him in their opinion. Not being with them he is against them; and that is all they need to know. The same intolerance is seen among prohibitionists themselves. Those who favor a Third Party are wont to look upon those, who do not as no better than the wicked. Themselves per-suaded that the Third Party affords the best means of bringing about prohibi-tion, and through that the abolition of the liquor traffic, they cannot understand how there may be sincerity coupled with common sense on the part of the other class of prohibitionists. There is of course no lack of intolerance in the ranks of the opponents of prohibition. Very many, themselves sot engaged in any branch of the liquor traffic, not drunkards, possibly abstain ers, are absolutely unable to realize that a man can favor prohibition without being off is his upper story.

The question having been submitted to the peope, as it should have been, the people will determine it by their votes. The question will be discussed, of course, but it should be discussed with due regard to the rights and honest intentions of everybody interested. After the vote shall have been counted and the result declared, we shall go on as before living together as neighbors and, let us hope, as friends.

Rich Enough to be Liberal.

Mrs. Hendricks, widow of the late Vice President, is chagrined to learn that she has found fault with Congress for giving pensions to Mrs. Logan and Mrs. Blair and none to herself. Mrs. Hendricks declares that she has neither expressed nor felt so ungenerous a senti-She does think that a Government so rich could well afford to pay her the undrawn salary of her late husband which now lies in the Treasury.

Mrs. Hendricks is entirely right, and there is no indelicacy whatever in her Philipi Republic there is no indelicacy whatever in her suggestion. It is no more than Congress is in the habit of doing every time a Congressman or a Senator dies. A body which can without scruple devote large with the configuration of sums of money to burying its members -pay bills for whisky, champagne, cocktails, Havana cigars, for the mourners who go to pay the last evidence of respect to the dear departed—can well afford to do the fair thing by the wides—the wides—the the Government of the United States is able to be liberal, and it ought to treat and settle down.

A tip for wild young men: Settle up and settle down. the Government of the United States is Mrs. Hendricks as well as it has treated other widows in similar cases. He is a AT NIGHT always have Acker's Baby marking souther at hand. It is the only seed

A. Bronson Alcott was in his early years a sort of transcendental anarchist, opposed to government. Taxes he espe-cially disbelleved in and for a time percamp disoeneved in and for a time persistently refused to pay any. He was once imprisoned for non-payment of taxes, and owed his release to Mr. Samuel Hoar, father of the present Senator, who paid them for him.

Mr. Bjornstjerne Bjornsen has been organizing in Norway a popular crusade against the Mormon emissaries who are seeking their prey there. He is an uncompromising foe of Russian tyranny, and thinks that America, England and Scandinavia ought to form a grand federation to protect the civilized world from the encroaching waves of Russian barbarism. barbarism, barbarism:

Secretary Whitney has two sons at boarding school, and one of them wrote home the other day: "We have a debating society, and one of our favorite subjects is. The United States Navy, and How Might It Be Improved.'" Perhaps it never occurred to the young man

The Rev. S. L. Conde, a prominent minister of Rockford, Ill., announces that hereafter he will have nothing to do with any political party. He will not even vote. He says: "There are two classes which should not use the ballot, clergymen and women; one is the representative of the Heavenly King and the other subject to men."

Senator Palmer recently appeared in the Senate Chamber wearing upon his

Mr. and Mrs. W. K. Vanderbilt are said to have been frightened out of their Bavarian cestle by ghosts. They hal leased the royal house for several months, but only remained in it two nights. Their rest was disturbed by peculiar noises that could not be accounted for. The lease was given up, and the disturbed couple returned to Paris.

Democratic Reform.

Under Public Printer Benedict's regime an essay on diseases of grape-vines was bound in a volume of Rebellion records, and Senator Sherman's speech in the cover of one delivered by Senator McPherson. The Congressional record seems to be the only publication escaping the general disorder and that, probably, because quite old enough to take care of itself. be carried on.

Not all of the prohibitionists, but some of the most active of them, have no patience with a man who does not favor prohibition. They take it for granted that there is something wrong with the moral side of him. He may be as far as themselves from joining hands with the liquor interest—may himself be a total abstainer from all intoxicants—but this

A Prophecy Partly Verified.

Niss Jennie Smith, so well known along the line of the Baltimore & Ohio and a zealous worker in the enterprises which so engage the W. C.T. U., recently said: "The saloons shall be turned into churches." Her prophetic eye is delighted by the sight of the lumber of an old hotel at Sandy Hook being converted into a new church.
